Analytics for developers: User behavior on websites - g0atbutt ===== kimlelly Very nicely made example. I don't have a complaint to make about the tool. Two things to consider if you decide to use this tool. First, there is no offline support. Secondly, your data will be stored in Firebase's system and don't necessarily go with your application. This might not be a problem in your case, but it's something to keep in mind. ----- jamesdallimore Hey, appreciate this comment. This is the first I've heard of this project! ----- jwilkins I love the fact that it's stored in firebase and not the client. Q: dynamically added images are not showing correctly I have a web page where the user can pick an image from his computer and then it appears on my page. I use JSOUP to connect to the site, download the picture from it (Json object), convert it to base64, and then insert it in my HTML page using innerHTML. It all works fine except when I want to set it as a background of another div. In fact, the image I downloaded contains the text "none" and when I set a background-image for the same div, it uses that "none" text.
