Some owners had to resort to using a memory card to run games that did not run on the system because they lack the 4 GB of internal memory in the console. After more than three years on the market, the PlayStation 3 shipped 33.1 million units worldwide, a number that is far less than the sales of its predecessor, the PS2. The PlayStation 3 was released in Japan in November 2000, with the European and American versions appearing later in 2001. The polyolefin is however expensive and has inferior gas barrier properties and therefore, a film or a sheet using a polyester or a polyvinyl alcohol film or a sheet is used in some fields. However, the polyester film or the polyvinyl alcohol film does not have sufficient gas barrier properties and therefore, for the promotion of the food or drink in the shelves of a shop or a supermarket, a film or a sheet having high gas barrier properties is demanded. A polyamide (hereinafter referred to as "PA") film is usually used as a film or a sheet having high gas barrier properties. However, the PA film is poor in flexibility and mechanical properties and therefore, it cannot be used for a use which requires high flexibility and mechanical properties, for example, a film or a sheet for a pre-bend processing and a packaging material. A polyester film or a polypropylene film (hereinafter referred to as "PP film") has high gas barrier properties and therefore, it is used as a packaging material of a food or drink. Recently, a polyester film is used for a packaging film or a wrapping film for a food or a drink which does not cause any bacteria generation. In addition to the gas barrier properties, a packaging material is required to have adhesiveness and to have low gas permeability. Further, a packaging material is also required to have low solubility with the contents, be applicable to a paste, for example, an aqueous paste such as an aqueous adhesives, a fat paste such as a food oil, or a creamy paste such as a cream or an aqueous paste such as a nail varnish, and to exhibit high heat sealability. However, a conventional packaging material is poor in the adhesiveness to the contents and a film or a sheet using a conventional packaging material is insufficient in the ad
