The physical impact of training and match-play are more accurate with HyperMotion, with greater physicality, force and feedback to players in almost every scenario during gameplay, making it more realistic to players and coaches alike. "We have a very strong development team who work hard to develop new experiences with the game," said Oliver Bierhoff, Fifa 22 Product Key game director. "We aim for the most realistic experience possible. We've been developing the game since the last FIFA, so we have a very good understanding of how to make FIFA 22 a very good football game. As result of that, we've been working on the details and bringing the game to a very high quality. We're very proud of the game we've developed." "FIFA 22 game director Oliver Bierhoff spent hours in the training facility each week with gameplay programmers and the lead producer to ensure that gameplay aspects in FIFA 22 are as realistic as possible. Photo Credit: EA SPORTS Most of the broadcast teams from the Westfield FFA Cup, one of Australia's main youth football competitions, were also used as test subjects for the development of FIFA 22. Bierhoff outlined some of the measures the team had taken in order to ensure that the broadcast team were playing the most authentic version of the game, with the 'broadcasts' featuring what they played in the training sessions, as well as the actual code that would be in the game when it is released. "They have played through the game many, many times. As developers we have also played the game and we are working with the development team to make sure we get all the gameplay feedback that the broadcast teams have given us," he said. "What they've been doing in the broadcast events here is very similar to what they would do in a game, so there is no difference. They've been playing exactly what they have been playing during the game. With them they can tell us where we should improve the game to make it even better and more authentic. This feedback we will incorporate into the game." When the game is released for Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC, it will be the first time that FIFA has released two separate editions for Xbox One and PlayStation 4, with a deluxe edition priced at $79.99 for the consoles and the standard edition priced at $69.99.
