Abdominal aortic aneurysms: are the results affected by the choice of prosthesis? This study compared the clinical and surgical results of patients who underwent abdominal aortic aneurysm repair with a bifurcated or a tube-graft aortic prosthesis. From January 1988 to June 2004, 226 patients underwent aneurysm repair at our institution. During this period, 111 patients underwent repair with a bifurcated prosthesis and 115 with a tube-graft prosthesis. There were no significant differences in age, gender, aneurysm characteristics, or comorbidities between patients who underwent bifurcated and tube-graft repairs. Perioperative mortality rates for elective aortic aneurysm repair with bifurcated prostheses were 20% versus 19% for tube-graft prostheses ($p = 1.0$). Follow-up ranged from 1 month to 12 years (mean of 32 months, median of 24 months). Survival at 5 years was 93% and 91%, respectively ($p = 0.52$). The late outcomes were also similar between the two groups ($p = 0.39$). The technique of aortic aneurysm repair with a bifurcated prosthesis is easy, reproducible, and can be performed with good perioperative and midterm results.[Athletic echocardiographic diagnosis of hypertrophic obstructive cardiomyopathy]. Hypertrophic obstructive cardiomyopathy (HOCM) is characterized by pathological left ventricular hypertrophy and a significant left ventricular outflow tract (LVOT) obstruction with diastolic murmur of mid to late systole. The diagnostic criteria

I want to make sure before submitting it that I have not misspelled any of the words. I searched in the Google Scholar database and I thought I find the referenced article: Trieb, A., Linder, P., and Härdle, W. (2009). On the usefulness of the $VLM$-Regression for interval-valued parameters. However, no pdf. The article is referenced from this page in the Springer link I found. The pages loaded is the below: How can I download this article? If not, how can I correct it? A: Looks like a 4-min google search finds these:

To evaluate the diagnostic value of two-dimensional echocardiography in heart and kidney disease. The indexes of left ventricular wall motion in 201 nephropathic patients were correlated with their ultrasonic cardiography and electrocardiogram(ECG). It was found that the diagnostic sensitivity and accuracy rate was 95.3%, that of the diagnostic specificity were 74.7%, that of positive predictive value were 80.4%, and that of the negative predictive value were 88.2%. The diagnostic value of nephropathic patients with three-dimensional echocardiography was superior to that of two-dimensional echocardiography (P Q: How to stop gdb when reading memcpy from memory If I am debugging a C program with gdb and have the value of a memcpy function called, what is the proper way to stop and print the complete memcpy from memory? int main(void) { char p = (char) 0x3000; memcpy(p, &0x0, 0x1F); //This memcpy overwrites the p variable, but I don't know how to stop gdb when reading from memory return 0; } A: It might help if you pause at that point with "py". This gives you the function's source code and its argument list. The value at 0x3000 is the source pointer, the value at 0x3001 is the destination pointer, and the value at 0x3002 is the length of the source buffer. This is
