■ The following a few words about Agecut:

The world of Elden acts as a stage where the great adventures of fantasy await. A fantasy where Elden, the only land that stands on the soft soil between the fast-flowing rivers of Mythra and Judea, lives in conflict with Land of Legend. The land of the Elden Lords and the land of the Wizards dwell between these two, and while a fierce battle rages, the world of Elden eternally waits for peace. Our theme, "The silent world that waits for hope.” is set in this world of fantasy in which a dream is waiting for one day. At the beginning of our campaign, we will share the beginnings of the story with you, and create the world of Agecut, its characters and the world where the legend will be born. As the system’s first title, please look forward to Rise of the youngest and all the characters unique to Agecut, which will surely make you experience a first-class fantasy RPG.

Q: How to connect to web service hosted on Azure web role through node.js I want to connect to a web service which is hosted on Azure Web Role. The web service is running on a Linux machine. I am able to make HTTP requests to the web service through standard client libraries (cURL, node.js, etc.). But I can't make a request with "https" protocol. I've been using node-request library and here is a piece of code that I have tested: var request = require('request'); request(''); I've checked similar questions here on stackoverflow. They were either answered based on the assumption that there is no certificate for "https" protocol or that client libraries are not sufficient for making a request to a web service hosted on Azure Web Role. Any ideas are welcome. A: We are also working with node.js and have found an alternative for you. Maybe this can help you. We are working with 2.1.2 version of azure-functions-core-library. Azure Functions are slightly different than regular web-functions and have different requirements. The library is available on Nuget. Generally the Azure Functions use two back-end services. Azure Blob Storage Azure Queues Also, the Azure Functions supports the standard HTTP2 protocol by default. You can use this http2 protocol in case of back-end services are using HTTP 1.1 protocol. The HTTP2 protocol is not an alternative in case of Azure Function and the Azure Function is not using HTTP2 protocol by default. Node.js Core Library http2 Next, we are using following code snippet. I am pretty sure this will work for you as well.

const Promise = require('bluebird'); var http = require('http2'); const https = require('https'); module.exports = function (context, req) { return new Promise((resolve, reject) => { const options = { hostname: '', path: '/', port: 8080, method: 'GET' }; https.request

Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim LITE - Provides everything that Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim has to offer and while it is a fully feature complete version of the game, it unfortunately lacks full Skyrim multiplayer compatibility. However, this is one of the better Skyrim LITE releases out there, and gives users a fun and complete version of the popular RPG title.
